A LARGE Newfoundland dog belonging to Mr. August Trich was yesterday drawn into the sewer at the elbow of the canal, and was whirled through it to the outlet at the river. ISAAC CRAFT, a colored man about sixty-five years of age, died suddenly about 5 o'clock this morning, at his residence at No. 110 Van Horne street near Linn. A serenade was in store for them at the Gibson House, which was missed by their tarrying too long at Weller's. This morning, at half past five o'clock, the journalists left for home by the Louisville Short-line.

THE Commencement exercises at Cedar Grove Convention, on the Warsaw pike, took place night before last at 7:30 o'clock. The programme consisted of musical and dramatic performances. At the close, the Reverend Archbishop conferred graduating honors on Miss Sallie Matthews, of Derby, Ind. This lady gave her valedictory address, which was responded to by his Grace the Archbishop.

A LETTER received at this office to-day from a subscriber in the eastern part of Nebraska says: "The hoppers have been coming and going for nearly a week. On Sunday they cleaned up fifty acres of corn for me in about three hours, leaving the ground as bare as if it had just been plowed. Have replanted thirty acres and expect to reap fifty more. Some of that eaten off is coming up again and may still make a partial crop. The wheat is not entirely destroyed, and it let alone now will make nearly a half crop."

WALTER MOULTON and Henry Salt were arrested last night by private Officer Williams, on a charge of burglary. They are accused of having, some nights since, entered the Railroad saloon, on Vine street, opposite the Grand Opera-house, and "knocked the till," obtaining several dollars in small currency. An Independent Chinese Government in California.

The Chinese residents of Sacramento, and doubtless those of other localities throughout the State, have a system of government far more powerful, as far as they are concerned, than that which State or city can bring to bear upon them. This is vested in a secret council, which passes upon all offenses and makes rules for the regulation of business. Any crime committed by a Chinaman against another is investigated by this tribunal, no matter whether the regular courts may have taken cognizance of it or not, and frequently the council goes so far as to impose the death penalty, its officers secretly disposing of the party against whom the sentence has been passed, he "merely turning up missing." Among other matters regulated by the council is that of the establishment of wash-houses. No Chinaman is allowed to conduct a wash-house unless he is enrolled on the books of the council, and even then he must not locate within the boundaries that may have been allotted to some other laundryman. Some months ago, a laundry was established beneath the Orleans Hotel, and a Chinaman from Stockton, said to be honest and capable, took charge of it. It happened that there was another laundry on the opposite side of the street, and the proprietor proceeded against the new-comer, who was cited before the council and fined $40, which he paid. Shortly afterward, officers of the council arrested him again, and he was fined $20 or $30, which he paid. A few days ago, they mulcted him in the sum of $30, the two officers collecting it by applying blows to his head, and a final measure, the death penalty had been pronounced against him, to be enforced unless he shall immediately leave the city. He is much exercised about it, saying that he will, some day, mysteriously disappear and his bones will never be taken back to his home in China, but P. W. Pratt, his landlord, a practical individual, not proposing to have his tenant ejected in this style, has taken the matter in hand, and will protect him to the full extent of the law, with possibly a margin over.

What a Child Saw. The Detroit Free Press says: Yesterday morning, some people living on Macomb street entered a house, to find father and mother dead, and their child, their child, four years old, dead in his cradle. The parents looked like beasts—the child wore the sweetest, tenderest smile on its white face that any of them ever saw. It had been lying for days, and its brief life had been full of bitter weep, but yet its little arms were about the old mother, and its little cold cheeks and felt of its icy hands.

Father and mother lay down at dark the evening before, and people passing by heard the child crying and wailing. It was too weak to crawl out of the cradle, and its voice was not strong enough to be heard by the mother, who was sleeping. When the sun went down and the evening shadows danced across the floor, and seemed to grasp at him, the boy grew afraid and cried out. The shadows came faster, and as they raced around the room and scowled darkly at the lone child, he nestled down and drew the ragged blanket over his head to keep the fearful shadows from seeing him. He must have thought his parents dead, and how still the house seemed to him.

"It's dark, mother—it's dark!" the neighbors heard him wail; but no one went in to comfort him and to drive the shadows away. The night grew colder, and the child's shivering body began to feel the cold. The mother, who was sleeping, heard the child's shivering body begin to feel the cold. The mother, who was sleeping, heard the child's shivering body begin to feel the cold.

A fearful suicide occurred in Paris the other day. Gerard Antoine called his little boy, age six, to him and said: "Little one, you have often wished to play with this pistol," showing the child an old pistol. "Oh, yes, papa," "Well, we will play with it now," and loading the weapon the father handed it to the boy. "Now look," he said, "it will get down on my knees before you; you will point at me right between the eyes and pull the trigger; you'll see how funny it is!" and knelt down. "Aim well, in the head, between the eyes," he said again. "But first embrace me." The poor child embraced his father, then pointed the pistol and fired. Gerard fell back dead, and the boy, seeing the terrible result, ran out of the room sobbing.

PURE ARTICLES. Remember that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder has been before the public for years—is the only one that has passed the test of worthy confidence—that the manufacturers put into the market pure articles, and do not pretend to compete with the adulterated, inferior compounds now so extensively forced upon the people. They claim that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder and Special Flavorings are the cheapest, because they are the purest; and that they are standard for strength and purity will be maintained.
